A MESSAGE FROM DEAN GUIDO KRICKX

Over the past year, the College of Extended Learning (CEL) has seen steady growth and begun to develop new opportunities. Our staff has done a wonderful job reaching out to students from all backgrounds to create a diverse student body. We are building programs that expand skills and prepare our students for today’s global economy.

Working closely with our partners at the main campus, we have established access for students who might not have previously considered San Francisco State for their educational needs. Our professional certificate programs and intensive courses have given students at all stages of their career a chance to quickly gain new skills for the modern job market.

Internationally, we are also developing our programs to give students around the world the opportunity to study at San Francisco State. For instance, our Semester @ SF State gives students the chance to experience a short-term education abroad program, while our American Language Institute (ALI) Gateway offers courses to improve English skills while preparing for academic life at San Francisco State.

We have made many advances at CEL in 2016-2017, and I look forward to continue working with our inspiring campus partners, instructors and staff to develop new programs over the coming years.

Sincerely,

Guido
WHAT SELF-SUPPORT MEANS FOR US

San Francisco State consists of seven colleges but CEL is the only one that is fully self-supporting. Here is a list of how our self-support foundation shapes our programs:

• Our mandate is to offer high quality programming that stands on its own two feet. Unlike the other six colleges, CEL does not receive any general funds from the State of California.

• CEL must recover all costs related to our programs and staffing in its fees. We return any excess revenue to the main campus or use it to develop new programs. We return millions of dollars to the individual colleges and San Francisco State each year.

• Since self-support funds and general funds cannot mix, we manage, staff, and fund on our own. Our enrollment and registration, faculty payroll, recruitment and marketing departments are completely separate from those used by the other six colleges.

CEL STUDENT SPOTLIGHT: DEEPAKI MAHAJAN

Deepali Mahajan came to the University after a successful career as a lawyer in her native country of India. Having spent her professional career in law, she knew she wanted to continue her career trajectory when she decided to move to the US. Deepali chose the Paralegal Studies Program at CEL to gain a better understanding of the US legal system and to take the first steps toward a career path in the States.

“For a person like me, who wants to take the bar exam, the Paralegal Program was a great bridge to learn the differences between Indian law and US law. My professors were lawyers or paralegals themselves, and they brought that experience to the classroom. The Downtown Campus is also perfect for me because it’s in the epicenter of the legal field and easy to get to if you’re already working in the field,” Mahajan said about her experience at the CEL.
This year we were pleased to announce the appointment of Angie Lipschuetz as our new Associate Dean. Associate Dean Lipschuetz has an M.S. and Ph.D. in Counseling Psychology from the University of Kansas. Her career background has seen her mentor new faculty, manage large teams of instructional designers, and lead project managers and administrators.

Most recently she was the Program Dean in the School of Advanced Studies at the University of Phoenix. The position saw her supervising the Assistant Deans, leading accreditation, mapping out new policy initiatives and managing online programs in doctoral education. We believe her expertise in online education, program development, delivery and assessment, management, and operations will help CEL as it grows its opportunities with campus and community partners.
Our Customized Training Program takes our long history of classroom success and brings it to businesses and nonprofits from abroad and throughout the San Francisco Bay Area. We will meet with you to identify what skills are needed, develop a curriculum that best meets those needs, and deliver it at our Downtown Campus, your office, or virtually.
